

TAMPA FINANCES IN GOOD SHAPE

THE FINANCIAL STATE OF TAMPA

Truth in Accounting's (TIA) new city report ranks and grades the 75 most populous cities in the United States by their financial health. Tampa ranks No. 10, earning it a "B" on TIA's grading scale.

Unlike most cities, Tampa's elected officials have only promised the amount of benefits they can afford to pay. Because of this, Tampa has enough money to pay all of its bills. When broken down, the amount available to pay future bills results in a surplus of $800 for each Tampa taxpayer.

Although Tampa has enough money to pay all of its bills, it is still not completely transparent with taxpayers. New accounting rules issued by the Governmental Accounting Standards Board require state and local governments to disclose all pension debt on their balance sheets. However, Tampa is still hiding more than half of its retiree healthcare debt.

Data included in this report is derived from the city of Tampa's 2016 audited Comprehensive Annual Financial Report and retirement plans' actuarial reports. Visit statedatalab.org for more information.
