Although North Dakota has enough money to pay all of its bills, it is still not completely transparent with taxpayers. Because of a new accounting standard from last year, it now has to report its pension debt on the face of the balance sheet. However, North Dakota is still hiding 3% of its debt. When it comes to retiree health care benefits, North Dakota is hiding $52.7 million from taxpayers.

Unlike most states, North Dakota's elected officials have only promised the amount of benefits they can afford to pay. Because of this, North Dakota has enough money to pay all of its bills. When broken down, the amount available to pay future bills results in a surplus of $24,000 for each North Dakota taxpayer.
